"The Appeal of Missouri."

An article under this designation, is published in the Missouri papers. It is addressed "To the Representatives, Press and People of the Northern States," and might be supposed to issue from some public body, or some authorized source. but no names are given with it. The subject of this paper will be a part of the next political action, and it is therefore proper for general consideration in the Western States, although they are not included in the schome of Missouri's appeal.

It is announced that Missouri in her recent election of Senators and Representatives has declared in favor of abolishing slavery in that State. But that the Logislature which is to meet in a few weeks, will find itself powerless to act, because the Constitution of that power to pass laws for the emancipation such emancipation, a full equivalent for such slaves so emancipated." It should be borne in mind by the if they get the "Union as it is," they cost something to somebody, and if engaged in, must have the consent of pockets, which in these latter days are likely to become both sentient and sensitive.

This proposal of Missouri, as it is called, will of course meet with favor with the gentleman who is now filling the office of President; we do not say favor Tun Unnasa Ustox is a newspaper for the with the President, for that would imply that he might lawfully have an official opinion on the subject. # Justice Swayne and Change Tickets.

A PARAGRAPH is circulating in some Ohio papers that Justice Swayne had recently decided in the Circuit Court at Cleveland, that the laws of Ohio against unauthorized bank paper, and particularly change tickets, were unconstitutional. Of course this is a mistake, for no such question could get before a Circuit Court of the United States. The uristake is probably this: The present Congress passed a law, or attempted to do so, making postage stamps a currency for small change. To this act was onnexed a prohibition against the making of change tickets by persons, companies. and corporations, and the prohibition was to be enforced by fine and imprisonment. If any person was indicted in the Circuit Court for violating this pretendptate contains a clause providing that dod law, the question of its validity would the General Assembly shall have no be presented, and if presented would of course be pronounced void for want of owners, or without paying them, before power in Congress to enact such a law.
